

"All the News
That's Fit to Print"

The New York Times.

LATE CITY EDITION

U. S. Weather Bureau Report (Page 55) forecasts:
Mostly fair today; cloudy tonight.
Cloudy, chance of showers tomorrow.
Temp. range: 64-46; yesterday: 60.7-49.3.

NEWS SUMMARY AND INDEX, PAGE 95

VOL. CX ..No. 37,507.

© 1960 by The New York Times Company.
Times Square, New York 36, N. Y.

NEW YORK, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1960.

5¢ outside New York City, its suburban area and Long Island.
5¢ in 17 Western states, Canada; higher in air delivery cities.

SECTION ONE

THIRTY CENTS

GOVERNORS TO SEE MAYOR ON 'CRISIS' IN THE NEW HAVEN

But Rockefeller Rejects Bid
by Ribicoff for 3-State
Commuter Talks Now

WIDE SURVEY ORDERED

8 Officials to Make It—
Albany Questions Plan
for a New Authority

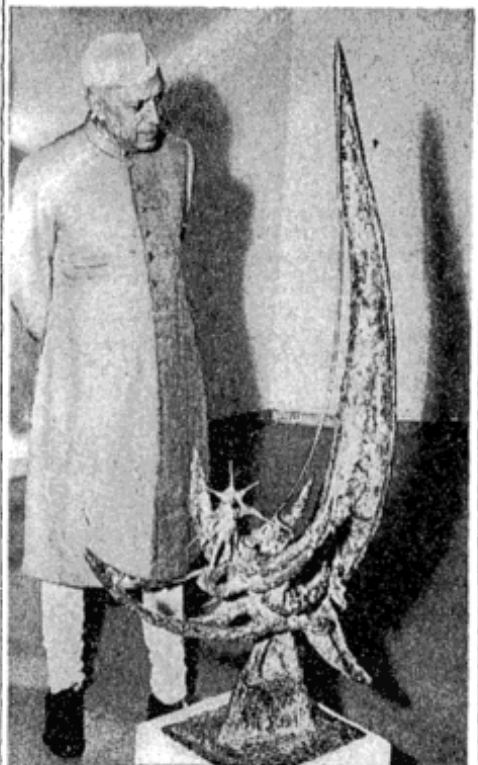

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 1—Governor Rockefeller will meet with Mayor Wagner and Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut in New York Oct. 25 to discuss the New Haven Railroad's "commuter crisis."

But the Governor has rejected, for the time being, Mr. Ribicoff's bid for a meeting of the two Governors, the Mayor and Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey to discuss over-all transportation problems in the metropolitan area.

Governor Rockefeller, in a statement issued by his office today, said that for such a conference to be "more meaningful" it should be preceded by a study by the three states and the city.

Guggenheim Art Fascinates Nehru

The New York Times (by Joseph Schillace)

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India visited the Minister arrived by limousine at the museum, which was de-

KENNEDY OUTLINES PROGRAM TO COURT EAST EUROPE BLOC

Would Encourage the Poles
and Others to Break Away
From Soviet Influence

By LEO EGAN

Special to The New York Times.
MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 1—Senator John F. Kennedy outlined a program today to drive a wedge between the Soviet Union and its eastern European satellites, particularly Poland.

In general, the program called for the use of United States economic and moral power to implement a policy of "patiently encouraging freedom and carefully pressuring tyranny."

The Democratic candidate for President revealed his program in a speech to 1,700 delegates to the American-Polish Congress in Chicago before coming here.

In a second major speech of the day, which was delivered here tonight at a fund-raising dinner of the Democratic-Farmer Labor party, Senator Kennedy denounced Vice President Nixon's farm program as a disguised attempt to remove Government price supports from agricultural commodities.

Seeks Peaceful Means

In announcing his program for dealing with Poland and

Russian's Speech Touches Off Protest by Spaniard

Premier Khrushchev as he spoke yesterday during the General Assembly session.

The New York Times (by Carl T. Gosselt Jr.)
José Felix de Lequerica assails Soviet slurs on Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

KHRUSHCHEV WARNS U. N. OF WAR PERIL OVER CHINA ISSUE

Premier Halted in Assembly
as He Denounces U. S. and Scorns Its Allies

HINTS AT A WITHDRAWAL

Wadsworth, 'a Bit Shocked'
at Outburst, Says It Dims
Prospect of Peace Talk

Excerpts from Wadsworth and Khrushchev talks, Page 34.

By LINDSEY PARROTT

Special to The New York Times.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 1—Premier Khrushchev, in an angry outburst, told the General Assembly today that only the admission of Communist China to the United Nations could avert the danger of a "terrible" atomic war.

Without including the Chinese mainland, he said, world disarmament would be impossible and "there cannot be any normal work by the United Nations."

The Soviet leader made his statements in the course of a

U. S. RADAR SCANS COMMUNIST AREAS

Missile-Warning System at Thule Is Put in Operation
on a 24-Hour Basis

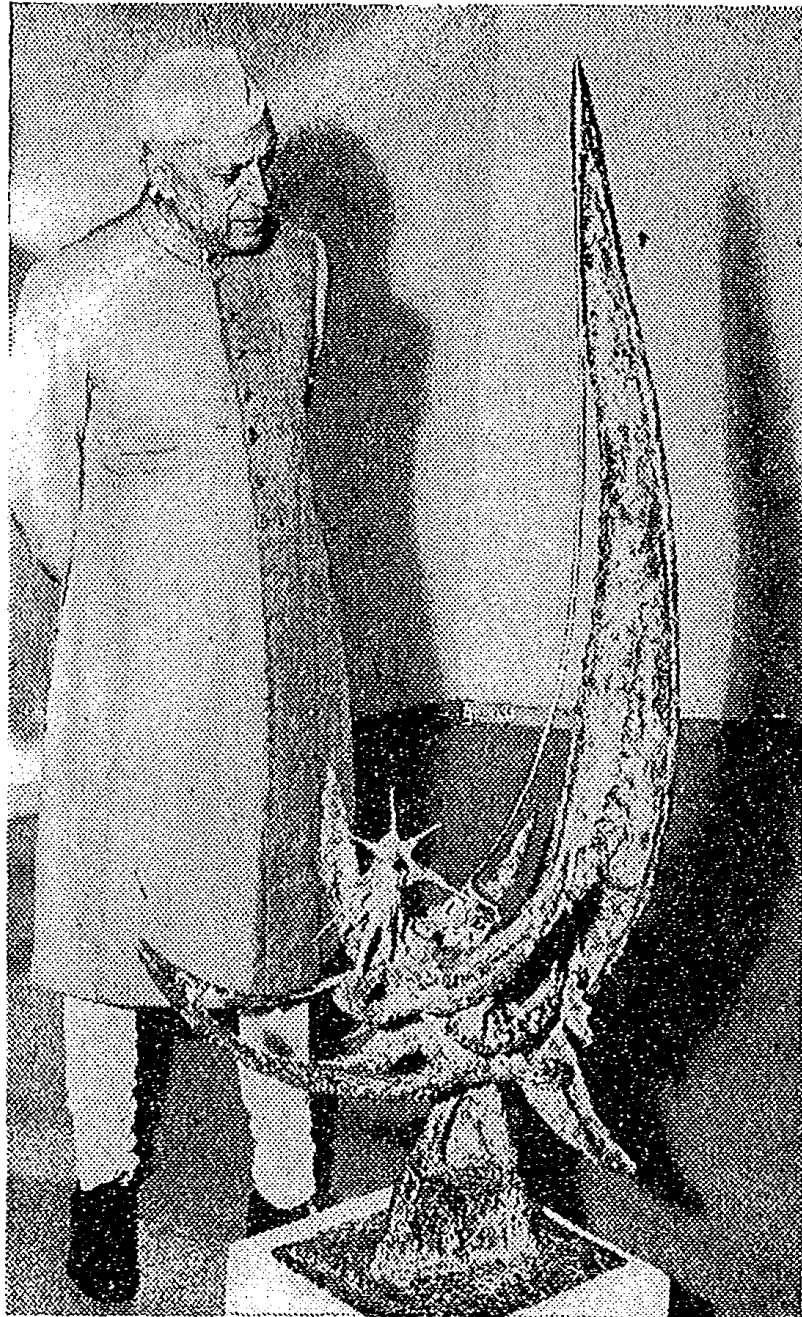

Capital Sees No Possibility Of U. S.-Soviet Talks Now

By WILLIAM J. JORDEN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—Informed sources in the Administration said today they could see no possibility of a meeting now between President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev. "They said there."

Guggenheim Art Fascinates Nehru

The New York Times (by Joseph Schifano)

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru views "Cradle Song," by Theodore J. Roszak, at Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India visited the controversial Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum yesterday and spent about fifty minutes looking at it and its abstract art collection. He diplomatically pronounced it all "perfectly fascinating," but he did not say he liked it. The Prime Minister arrived by limousine at the museum, which was designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, at Fifth Avenue and Eighty-eighth Street, shortly after noon and was welcomed by Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Guggenheim

Continued on Page 6, Column 1

The New York Times

Published: October 2, 1960

Copyright © The New York Times

GUGGENHEIM ART INTRIGUES NEHRU

Continued From Page 1, Col. 3

Foundation. Mr. Guggenheim and Dr. Louise Svendsen, curator of education, guided Mr. Nehru and his entourage, including State Department representatives and security guards, along the spiral ramp inside the museum, starting at the top and working down.

Mr. Nehru, wearing a white linen Gandhi cap, a tan coat, white jodhpurs, black shoes and a red rose in a center buttonhole, drew at least as much attention from museum visitors as Kandinsky and Miró.

Dr. Svendsen explained the pictures. At a blackish canvas by Carlos Planell, the Prime Minister said, as others have, "What is this supposed to be?"

"It attempts to give you a feeling of textures, space and a certain amount of atmosphere," Dr. Svendsen responded. Mr. Nehru gave the picture his neutralist stare.

"You've got to participate actively with the artist in modern painting," Dr. Svendsen said encouragingly.

Mr. Nehru nodded and moved on. He looked next at a work by Manuel Rivera, composed of wire mesh with ragged edges.

Frequently he walked to the edge of the ramp and looked into the well of the museum. He showed interest also in the manner in which the paintings are mounted out from the walls instead of being hung on them. He asked whose idea it was.

"James Johnson Sweeney's," Mr. Guggenheim replied. Mr. Sweeney, formerly the museum's director, resigned some time ago.

Mr. Nehru gazed for a long minute at a sharp-pointed, crescent-like sculpture by Theodore J. Roszak called "Cradle Song." No comment. He smiled faintly at the green-skinned "Green Violinist" by Marc Chagall.

"When I lecture on this painting and children — and adults too — ask me why his face is green, I say, 'Why not?'" Dr. Svendsen said. Mr. Nehru nodded.

Disclaimer of Talent

The Prime Minister, who is believed to be the first head of government attending the current United Nations General Assembly to visit the Guggenheim, was asked if he did any painting himself.

"I do not," he said crisply. "I'm totally illiterate in that respect."

Mr. Nehru had breakfasted with Wladyslaw Gomulka, the chief of the Communist party in Poland. He left the museum at about 1 P. M. to lunch with Walter Nash, the Prime Minister of New Zealand.

Before departing, Mr. Nehru said he had been "perfectly fascinated" by all he had seen. Mr. Guggenheim said it had been a privilege and a pleasure.

Last night Mr. Nehru attended a preview of "Becket," a play about Thomas à Becket, the twelfth-century English archbishop and martyr.